Inspector's Report

Oriental school

There are 34 pial schools in the city of Mysore, maintained by the fees collected. They are distributed over the town in the following order — 7 in Krishnaraj mohala, 4 in Chamraj mohala, 9 in Devaraj mohala, 8 in Mandy mohala, 3 in Lushkar, 3 in Nazarbad mohala

The Sanitary condition of many of these schools is anything but satisfactory, some of them being too narrow, and dark and others admitting the direct rays of the sun. They are not separated in some of the mohalas (Krishnaraj, Devaraj, Chamraj) from each other except by a low wall and in Krishnaraj mohala they are, for the most part, crowded with [illegible] yards, and in such [illegible] the [illegible] are [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] schools [illegible] [illegible]

great demand for Primary education in these Municipalities.

Some of the teachers of these rural schools hesitate and even refuse to apply for grant in aid. They fear that strict rules of Inspection & fine for regular attendance will be laid down and that they cannot, then be the sole masters of their time.
In Aurangabad Municipality, all the three rural schools refuse all help from the Municipality, so also the Rural schools in Nandyal and in Dhuraj Mohnka Even those that have already applied for grants in-aid refuse all aid subjected to the condition of keeping the school & decent buildings. So far the Inspector close the school, whenever we reach, On one occasion, when I paid a visit to these school, I found 2 of these schools closed for no other reason than that the teachers themselves had some private engagement; and on another occasion, I had to wait for the teacher of one of these schools for nearly one hour.

In each of these schools the classes are too many for a single teacher to manage efficiently and the consequence of his inattention to one part of school, while engaged in teaching the other part, the mischief is bound and the discipline is lost. The teachers are usually, I say, the -have chosen the profession, simply because it is easy for it can be done by those who have no other right for the place than that of being descendants of those that have established the schools. The real duties of the teacher are not thought of.

Reading — The students of Jamun Bhakthisana &c read the portion taught fairly well, but if they are given a passage of equal difficu they hesitate to read Hence read- -ing is unsatisfactory

Dictation — Even students of the highest class cannot write a com sentence to dictation correctly -

Arithmetic — Many of the teachers go up to multiplication-table, be beyond it they cannot teach Some of them know the first 2 rule. in arithmetic and make an attempt to teach them to the young boy, but whatever they teach is neces- -sarily mechanical

The object of these pari schools seems to me to be, to give instruction in 3 R's, but under the present state of affairs very little attention is paid to ~~Arithmetic~~, writing and reading and the arithmetic is almost neglected.

Considering the classes of pupils attending these schools and their wants, I suppose that it is enough if they are taught the four rules in arithmetic and acquire a fair ability to read and write, but the present classification and the subjects taught hardly satisfy their wants.

At present there are only 2 classes in each of these schools— the first class reading the first book and the next higher class reading Jaimini &c.

To improve the language of the pupils, it is very necessary to introduce more prose works. Hence I am of opinion that the course must be extended at least to three years and that there ought to be two intermediate classes between the first and the

2. To instruct the teachers themselves wherever necessary

To frame strict regulations for regular attendance and internal management of these schools

Organised Schools

There are nearly 20 organised schools in the City of Mysore; 17 of these are maintained by the municipality. These schools follow the curriculum prescribed by the Govt and due following more attention is being paid to matters than to the method of imparting instruction. Hence education in these schools is not as satisfactory as it ought to be Even subjects, which ought to exercise all the powers of children are made subjects of pure memory work Catechisms of geography and objective lessons are prescribed and the students are made to get up questions and answers

The value of the object lesson is entirely lost, when it is merely prescribing words, etc for the -gram and leading to what is to be done, [illegible]

Geography - which is the most and most interesting subject, when taught from a map has become in many of these schools, the driest subject and unnecessarily taxes the energies of the pupils.

History - which ought in the early stages be related in the form of Stories, has become a dry table of events and dates

Arithmetic. This is a subject which is worst taught in many of the schools More attention is paid at present to the mechanical parts of the work and the subject is made as uninteresting as possible

A lesson in multiplication and division is rarely done by the pupils, but a collection of the results of the sums is done. This is a stumbling block to the progress. Even lessons in [illegible] are done [illegible]

are requested to explain, they say that explanations confuse the young minds and that therefore they are reserved, but I find not altogether correct these explanations which have read by intelligible to the young minds

Perhaps either the ignorance or the carelessness of the teachers themselves in the bottom of this to remedy these defects a thorough change in the working staff or elementary instruction to the teachers themselves will be very necessary, but the teachers may not be willing to come under the instruction of others

Hence there may possibly be a necessity [illegible] to [illegible] but such [illegible] above is the [illegible] [illegible]

ie teachers of the Primary Depart ment have powder hence yet to have the lower secondary. They have to shape the destiny of the future generation. It is impossible that such men can engage the attention of the pupils and make instruction interesting. If the Govt rightly insists on employing normally trained men in the Headmasters of the Hobli Schools, I do not see any reason, why the same rule may not be enforced in these schools or better why the teachers themselves may not be instructed by an efficient Hope animated Man

The two Sanskrit Pathsalas (Sadvidyasala and Pradarshana)
These are institutions which more attention is paid to Sanskrit Special education in Sanskrit The strength of the Primary Department is comparatively small and there is given here [illegible]

The Headmasters of these institution openly confess that their institutions are meant only for higher and Special education in Sanskrit, but not ~~for~~ for Pri education. In fact they seem to have the Primary Department in these schools as a matter of necessity and if allowed they will readily dispense with it and devote all their attention to the Specialised instruction alone. With such unwilling teachers whose interests are more for the higher, the primary education cannot fare better than at present and the higher education fares well and will continue to be at such at the cost of the Primary The municipality may therefore request the Govt to relieve it

Suggestions for opening new Municipal schools.—

The State of primary education is not very satisfactory on the whole. Hence sufficient provision for Primary educat: is a matter of necessity. The new municipal schools may be opened in the following Mohalas.

2 in Krishnaraj Mohala
1 in Chamraj Mohala
2 in Mandy Mohala
2 in Devaraj Mohala
1 in Nagarbad Mohala.

In Srirangapatna, Lushkar, Killa Mohalas, there are a number of organised Primary schools.

Each of the new municipal Schools in Krishnaraj, Devaraj &c. may be manned by two trained teachers with monitors to assist them. The Head Masters shall have passed the Upper Secondary and shall have undergone training and the Assts shall have passed the Lower Secondary examination

In the Mohalas where there are organised schools, the inspector managers may be requested to compel the teachers of the Primary Department to undergo training. Unless we introduce trained men into the Ripon Schools and appoint trained men alone as the masters of the new schools to be opened in the various mohallas, the state of Primary Education, will not, in my conviction be improved.

The advantage which training gives a man are so many to be dwelt upon here. Suffice it to say that a trained man knows what he ought in the early stages, to make instruction look like pastime, that he ought not to force instruction on the young mind that work and play must interchange, and that the attention of the children should not be employed for more than a few minutes at a time.

An untrained man, on the other hand may not know these principles, and if not how to be more difficult and to convince them of the value of training will be almost impossible. But until trained men are available for us, it shall be our care to guide the teachers we may employ and force the schools that receive grant already to employ only trained men and to send those that are already in service for training.
